Flight delayed or cancelled, waiting for a connecting flight, ... Does this sound familiar?

For this reason, the Stay2Day® - Small Hotel was developed. This small hotel will offer passengers a retreat, if, due to several reasons, they have to wait a long time for their flight: it may be you want to take the opportunity for a nap or even work undisturbed.

It may also be that airport employees and employees of the various airlines use it during their break times. It can also be used directly as accommodation, such as for tourists who are just passing through a city and want to stay for a night or two.

High comfort and versatility in a small space are the concepts on which the Stay2Day® - Hotel are based. A box consists of two completely separate and independent units, which are arranged one above the other. Both are equipped with a changing area, a mattress, shelves and various technical connections. The two units are designed so that the mattresses in the upper and lower units are positioned above one another, thus minimizing space requirements. However, both units are soundproofed to guarantee complete tranquility for guests.

The units provide flexibility. For instance, there are two options for the position of the entrance door. Furthermore, two units can be directly connected with one another to create a double box. Size changes are also possible if required.

The existing two-unit boxes can, if necessary, be expanded with a sanitary unit - with a toilet and a shower included - which can be positioned between two boxes for use by four units.

In the general arrangement of the boxes in a room, the boxes can either be set up individually or as a series, and either positioned against a wall or as free-standing units. Thus, the available floor space can be optimized.
